Getting to Know Catapult Health

Catapult Health is a national preventive healthcare practice performing diagnostic blood work in real time (unique to Catapult) and offering each participant a private consultation with a board certified Nurse Practitioner.

Here are a few ways to become more familiar with Catapult Health and understand how we are changing the face of preventive care for the work place.

Bloodwork, biometric measurements, and family history are just some of what’s included in each checkup. To see the entire list of values measured and topics discussed, visit: CatapultHealth.com/services-included-in-checkup.

Example copies of the Personal Health Report (received by each employee) and the Population Health Report (data shared with the Employers) can be seen here: CatapultHealth.com/health-reports.

Catapult Health’s checkups are not biometric screenings. Once you see Catapult in action you’ll know there’s no comparison, but for now, here is some data to give you an idea of Catapult’s superior technology, staff, and processes: CatapultHealth.com/how-catapult-differs-from-biometric-screenings.

Nurse Practitioners

Catapult employs over 200 board certified Nurse Practitioners, clinicians who consult with every single checkup participant. A Nurse Practitioner (N.P.) is a registered nurse who has advanced education (Master’s or Doctorate level degree) and clinical training in a healthcare specialty. Catapult Health Nurse Practitioners are trained to focus specifically on the health indicators measured during each Preventive Checkup and to provide diagnosis, treatment and ongoing care recommendations for these risk factors and related conditions, especially hypertension, heart disease and diabetes.
